FAVORITE PRESCRIPTIONS

About three years ago I began to suffer severely with acute indigestion. I had spells of dizziness, my eyesight was affected, my appetite disappeared. I lost flesh, my once graceful figure vanished. You can understand how bad it was when I tell you that I had to pad in spots, in this day of 12-inch skirts.

I tried many doctors. I took many prescriptions; I took sixteen bottles of Tupper's Two-Hour Triumph without appreciable result. Skroogus exercises failed to benefit me. I was in despair.

About Christmas time 1913 a friend induced me to go to a dance, although I looked a fright. He felt sorry for me, and had nerve. I was induced to try one of the new dances. I didn't know its name at the time, but he knew how to do it well and I liked the way it went. Later in the evening I discovered it was called the Tango. I danced seven Tango numbers during and before supper period, went to this buffet with my partner, ate four sardine sandwiches, a boiled egg, lobster sandwich and three cups of coffee. I suffered no harmful results, although ordinarily two cups of coffee three times a day with my meals made me ill.

After the supper interval I danced twelve more Tango numbers. Then I went home and practiced the steps in my bed room for three hours. I then returned to a sound and dreamless sleep.

The next morning I did a few steps before going to breakfast and astonished my family by calling for four eggs. I ate them all. Following breakfast I went to see my latest doctor and told him the results of my night's dissipation. He questioned the authenticity of my statements, but I induced him to try a few steps with me around the office desk and he then said he thought there might be something in it. I now Tango regularly at least three times daily. Often I do it more frequently; in fact whenever opportunity offers or can be found. I can recommend the Tango to all suffering humanity as a cure for the horrors of indigestion. I have regained all my old time spirits and have trouble getting into a modern skirt. Many of my friends have been induced to try the gait with equally marvelous results. I even know a number of doctors who after thorough tests, have ceased prescribing drugs and now rely wholly on the Tango for results.
